DOUBLE LOSS YESTERDAY SPURS MILAN'S ATHLETES

Tygers, Led by Cobb With Seven Hits, Trim Nationals by Late Inning Rallies, Getting Nine Runs in Final Frame of Last Game.

BY DENMAN THOMPSON.

ISGUSTED with themselves for permitting the Tygers to steal two games right from under their noses, the Nationals today will tackle the Cobbmen in another pair of pastimes, thirsting for revenge the invaders and anxious to rehabilitate themselves in the estimation of the fans, as well as regain their own self-respect, sadly impaired by the 7-6 and 11-9 setbacks they suffered yesterday.

Francis and Brillheart probably will get the hurling assignments, and they will have to be far better than the flingers Manager Milan called on yesterday if they are to have any more success, for Johnson, Mogridge and Zachary all were hammered, and Cobb got by with his second-string mound performers, while today he will have twirlers of a higher class to Oldham and Holland having proved totally incapable of checking them, while Mogridge had limited the visitors to a pair of tallies. In the ninth inning they hopped all over Mogridge and Zachary who attempted to rescue hary, who attempted to r , and with nine hits and him, and with nine hits and three passes registered nine runs, the bases being loaded when Brillheart was summoned and fanned Heilmann to retire the side. Then, with Dauss opposing them, the Griffs were unable to get a ball out of the infield in their half.

Tygers Start Early in Opener. The Tygers rang up two counters if Johnson right at the outset in the pener. Smith's two-base must of Smers Smith's two-base muff of Siue's fly-in-the-sun was the entering wedge. Jones shoved him along with a sacrifice, he scored on Cobb's fourble over the initial sack and Tyrus allied on a single to center by Veach Heilmann hit into a double play. Johnson walked a pair, with no lamage resulting in the second, and or round 3 took Heilmann's tap and ossed out Cobb at the plate after Prus walked with one down and vent to third on a single to left by feach, but an error by Harris gave he Jungaleers another tally in the ourth. One gone Bassler and Cole ingled in succession, the former topping at second. Blue bounced to reck, and a dual killing was in sight, but Harris took his throw for a orce-out, and then heaved over udge's head, Bassler scoring.

The Nationals efforts to get somewhere in the final frame were checked in snappy fashion. Jones first robbed peck of a double, with a sensational stab of his liner over third. Oleson walked Rice and after he pitched one ball to Judge, he was lifted, Oldham taking his place. Judge connected for a terrific whack toward right, on which Riue made a specticular play.

HICAGO, July 8.-Par golf today ceased to be a mark to shoot at by entrants for the national open golf championship at Skokie. for the baked fairways have given shots through the green such tremendous distances that numerous scores well under the perfect figure of 70 have been made. With the 66 scored by Clarence Hackney of Atlantic City, the 6,548-yard links has been covered twice in that wee score, while John Black, professional of the Claremont Country Club, San Francisco, nonchalantly hopped off the train after a cross-continent ride and shot a 67 within three hours of his advent among the record field of 1.000 and shot a 0 1.000 320 experts.

Seigers have shot the links at least once. Long Drives Are Easy.

When a golfer, even though he be the long driver that Abe Mitchell, the British professional is, can drive to the green of a 430-yard hole, it is easy to understand how such a difficult links as Skokie can be played in few strokes. One professional said if some weather condition could be brought about to make the holes gobble putts, the way the fairways race the ball, the course could be played in next to nothing.

The putting greens are fine, players agreeing that they never found more even or truer greens in their experience. And the fairways offer good lies, despite the hard ground beneath the parched grass. Showers threatened yesterday, and, while the forecast is to the contrary, it is hoped by the players that rain will slow up the course before the final test. This hope is not fathered by fear of low scores, for none of the players has expressed a dread of bettering the record score of 286 set by Chick Evans at Minneapolis in 1916, but the low scores come to the player whose ball does not take the roil of the ground and skid into the numerous sand traps.
